

Case Study: Ibrat Farzandlari Korean Learning System

Requirements elicitation, functional scope, and non-functional specifications for Uzbek-language Korean instruction.

Main Users, Goals, & Needs

TOPIK Candidates

Targeting Korean university admission via TOPIK I & II certifications.

EPS-TOPIK Applicants

Preparing for South Korean employment visa qualification exams.

Self-Guided Beginners

Mastering Hangul and basic grammar through native Uzbek instruction.

Solving Educational Access Barriers

! Key Problems Solved

High Cost: Eliminates expensive private tutoring fees.

Geographic Limits: Removes regional offline course barriers.

Language Barrier: Replaces Russian/English materials with Uzbek explanations.

✓ System Solution Impact

Structured Paths: Sequential lesson ordering from A1 to B2 level.

Free Distribution: Zero-cost digital video and PDF lesson delivery.

High Scalability: Millions reached concurrently without classroom limits.

Core Functional Requirements

Video Lesson Catalog

Sequential video playlists organized by grammar topic and CEFR tier.

Vocabulary Drills

Digital flashcards and Hanja word listings integrated per video module.

TOPIK Assessment Engine

Interactive practice tests with timed listening and reading sections.

Progress Tracker

User account dashboard tracking completed lessons and quiz scores.

Non-Functional Requirements

Streaming Speed

Adaptive bitrate streaming for low latency on 3G and 4G networks.

Cross-Platform

Fully responsive web and mobile layout optimized for Android and iOS.

Data Reliability

Secure user authentication with cloud-synced progress logs.

Accessibility

Dual Uzbek-Korean captions and clear high-contrast interface.

YouTube Delivery vs. Dedicated App

YouTube Limitations

No interactive grading, limited vocabulary testing, and lack of timed exam simulators.

Dedicated App Strengths

In-app homework submission, automated feedback, offline downloads, and streak tracking.

FUTURE SCOPE

Proposed Feature Roadmap

PHASE 3

Gamified Study Community

Peer study groups, leaderboard achievements, and teacher Q&A forums.
